RAILROADS

Railroads Fear a Mine Strike on Laborers' Demands.

Agreements With Operators Will Expire March 31.

For the first time in many years the agreements between the anthracite and bituminous miners and operators will expire simultaneously on March 31 of this year, and already the railroads, fearing it will be impossible for the latter to grant the new demands of their employees, already formulated, have huge quantities of coal stored away for use in emergency. This garnering has been going on for the past three months. It is declared by an official whose expression of opinion can be taken as authoritative that the hard coal operators have already refused to grant the demands of the miners. On January is the bituminous miners will held their convention in Indianapolis and an inkling of what they will ask has already reached the operators and railroad heads. The demands of the intimunous miners are said to be more drastic than those of the anthracite workers. Unless some agreement satisfactory to the miners is reached, in the opinion of operators and railroad officials, a strike is inevitable.

William B. Wilson, secretary of the department, of labor, who for years was a miner in Pennsylvania, in a statement made recordly at Washington, declared that he believed an amicable estiment would be reached.

The general prosperity in industrial carableshments throughout the east and west has placed practically every plant in full capacity with the result that the hard and soft coal new on hand is far less thin one-third of the amount usually in storage this time of the very pears.

titles to bring the campaign to an end this year.

"That does not depend on the soldiers who have done their task herocially. It depends entirely upon—I say it in all solemnity—the workmen of this country doing what the workmen of France have done, frankly setting aside conditions, throwing themseives into the work and sticking to their workshops. Unless they do that I cannot tell what the result will be."

cates of birth and naturalization also are demanded.

The ambassador pointed out that the change in regulations is especially onerous upon native Americans, owing to the absence of any general practice in the United States of giving official birth certificates. He also brought the matter to the attention of the German embassy here but received answer that the new regulation applied to citizens of all countries alike, including those of German allies.

are roomy, clean nests, frequent gathering of eggs and the immediate use of small, dirty or cracked eggs.

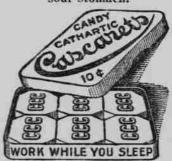

Professor Lippincott asserted that as a step toward the general end which the urged the "loss off method of burchasing eggs is coming into arger use in the middle west. By this method eggs unfit for food are discarded and are not paid for. Formerly, he said, eggs have been bought upon a "case count" basis for a quoted price, without reference to quality or condition.

"The value of the annual egg crop of Missouri, according to dependable statistics, furnished by the state bureau of labor striistics, is more than $30,000,000." Professor Lippincott concluded. "It is disposed of in three ways, about 25 per cent of it is consumed by the producers and their families, Probably not over 3 per cent is marketed as a specialty while the remaining 62 per cent finds its way into the regular channels of trade as a standard product."
